ROY P. BASLER RETIRES AS MANUSCRIPT DIVISION CHIEF
John C. Broderick Appointed to Post

Roy P. Basler, Chief of the Manuscript Division of the Library of Congress since 1968, retired on December 31. As a Lincoln scholar, author, educator, historian, and manuscript authority he served the Library of Congress with distinction since 1952, first as Chief of the General Reference and Bibliography Division, and subsequently as Associate Director, Acting Director, and Director of the Reference Department, and finally as Chief of the Manuscript Division. At his retirement, Mr. Basler was appointed by the Librarian to a three-year term as Honorary Consultant in American Studies and will continue to serve the Library in that capacity.

Mr. Basler was educated at Central Methodist College (Mo.) and at Duke University, which awarded him the Ph. D. degree in 1931. Subsequently, he held a succession of academic posts as head of departments of English at Ringling College, Florence (Ala.) State Teachers College, and George Peabody College. He was Professor of English at the University of Arkansas, 1943-46. In 1973 he was Fulbright-Hays visiting Professor in American Literature, University of Auckland, New Zealand. Mr. Basler's specific areas of expertise are American Literature and American History.

Mr. Basler became executive secretary and editor-in-chief of the Abraham Lincoln Association in 1947. Under the sponsorship of that Association, he edited the writings of Lincoln, published in eight volumes as The Collected Works of Abraham Lincoln in 1953. He has since then produced a one-volume Supplement to the Works. As scholar and author, he has written

CANCER EDUCATION PROGRAM SCHEDULED

The Health Services Office will conduct a Cancer Education Program consisting of the film "Breast Cancer—Where We Are," a question-and-answer period, and a distribution of pamphlets on breast self-examination. All employees are encouraged to attend this program on Tuesday, January 14, in the Navy Yard Auditorium of Building 191, at 10:30 a.m.; and on Wednesday, January 15, in the Coolidge Auditorium of the Main Building, at 9:30 a.m., 10:30 a.m., and 2:30 p.m.

The Cancer Education Program was originally requested by the Federal Women's Program Committee. In the near future the Health Services Office will provide cancer detection clinics specifically for uterine and breast cancer.

In this issue on page 12 are the LC minority statistics for November 1974. The LC Semiannual Report for January 1975 appears as an Appendix.

DEBOST AND IVALDI IN CONCERT JANUARY 17

On Friday evening, January 17, the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation in the Library of Congress will sponsor a concert of instrumental chamber music for flute and piano. The artists are Michel Debost, flute, and Christian Ivaldi, piano. Mr. Debost has recently been appointed first flutist of the Orchestre de Paris and continues to perform as soloist with other major orchestras. Mr. Ivaldi, now professor at the Paris Conservatoire National, was awarded first prizes at this institution in piano, chamber music, harmony, counterpoint, and piano accompaniment before he was 20 years old. These artists have performed permanently as a team since 1958.

The program for the concert will include: Sonata by Bohuslav Martinů; Serenade in D major, Op. 41 by Ludwig van Beethoven; Sonata in E flat major, S. 1031 by Johann Sebastian Bach; Density 21, 5 for solo flute by Edgar Varèse; and Sonatine by Pierre Boulez.

The concert will begin promptly at 8:30 p.m. in the Coolidge Auditorium of the Library. Tickets will be distributed by Patrick Hayes, 1300 G Street, N.W., beginning at 8:30 a.m., Monday, January 13. A service charge of 25 cents is placed on each ticket, and only two tickets are distributed to an individual. Telephone reservations may be made on Monday morning by calling 393-4463. Mail orders are not accepted.

This concert will be broadcast live and in its entirety by Station WETA-FM, and later made available to stations in other cities through the Katie and Walter Louchheim Fund in the Library of Congress.

LC REVIEWS LCIB CIRCULATION AND SPEEDS LCIB MAILING

The Library is reviewing its Information Bulletin mailing list to retain only the names of persons and institutions currently interested in receiving this publication. A simple address card is being sent to every person and institution receiving the Information Bulletin by mail to determine if they wish to remain on the mailing list. Those not responding to the postage paid circularization notice within 30 days will be dropped from the list. Each recipient is requested to review his needs carefully because of the paper shortage and the cost of mailing by first-class mail.

Also in an effort to conserve paper and to speed delivery through the Postal Service for first-class mailing, the Library is placing a mailing cover over the Information Bulletin during the stapling operation. The mailer may be discarded upon receipt of the

The Lincoln Legend (1935), Lincoln His Speeches and Writings (1946), Sex, Symbolism, and Psychology in Literature (1948), A Short History of the American Civil War (1967), A Touchstone for Greatness (1973), and The Muse and the Librarian (1974). He has edited Walt Whitman's Memoranda during the War and Death of Abraham Lincoln (1962) and Lincoln's Gettysburg Address in Translation (1972), and has published many articles, reviews, and poems. Mr. Basler was also responsible for overseeing the preparation of A Guide to the Study of the United States of America, a comprehensive annotated bibliography of major publications on American history and culture published by the Library in 1960.

More than 250 of his friends and colleagues gathered in the Coolidge Auditorium, on Monday, December 9, for "an evening of readings" by Richard Eberhart, Josephine Jacobsen, Reed Whittemore, and Arnold Moss. A reception in the Whittall Pavilion followed the readings.

Messrs. Eberhart and Whittemore and Mrs. Jacobsen, each of whom served as Consultant in Poetry during the years of Mr. Basler's service at the Library of Congress, read from their own poems. Mr. Eberhart's selections included several poems about other poets (Harriet Monroe, Emily Dickinson, Robert Frost). Mrs. Jacobsen read five poems, including two on the art of poetry. Mr. Whittemore's selections included the first poem he wrote as Consultant in 1964 ("Today") and a long poem, "The Mother's Breast and the Father's House." Mr. Moss read chiefly from the writings of Abraham Lincoln, interspersed with selections from Mr. Basler's writings about Lincoln. He concluded with a speech from Shakespeare's Prospero (The Tempest), a role he has performed more than once in the Library's Whittall Poetry and Literature Series.

The special program was also the occasion for a Basler family reunion. Mr. Basler's sisters came from Missouri and Oregon, and his sons and daughters from California, New York, and Ohio, to join several members of the family in the Washington area. A number of out-of-town guests were also present. They included theatrical notables Lillian Gish, Patricia Peardon, Lucy Kroll, Ken Richards, and Lucille Lortel of New York City; Daniel Hoffman, Library of Congress Consultant in Poetry 1973-74, of Philadelphia; Jay Saunders Redding, Honorary Consultant in American Cultural History, of Ithaca, N.Y.; poet William Meredith of New London, Conn.; and Mrs. Sean O'Casey, widow of the Irish dramatist. Also attending, in addition to Library officers, staff, and former staff, were many friends and benefactors of the Library from the Washington area.

To succeed Mr. Basler as Chief of the Manuscript Division, the Librarian of Congress has appointed John C. Broderick, who has been Assistant Chief of the Division since 1965. Mr. Broderick joined the Library staff in 1964 and served as Manuscript Historian-Specialist in American Cultural History in the Manuscript Division before becoming Assistant Chief.

He is a graduate (A.B.) of Southwestern College in Memphis, Tenn., and received the A.M. and Ph. D. degrees from the University of North Carolina. Mr. Broderick has specialized in American Literary History and English, teaching in both fields for several years before coming to the Library of Congress. He was associated with the University of North Carolina as a part-time professor from 1949 to 1952, as a full-time professor at the University of Texas from 1952 to 1957, as visiting professor at the University of Virginia during 1959, and at Wake Forest University as Professor of English from 1957 to 1965. Since 1964, he has also served as Adjunct Professor and Consultant in Bibliography at George Washington University.

Mr. Basler

He is the author of a number of articles, pamphlets, and textbooks in his fields, and holds memberships and has held offices in various learned societies.

Mr. Broderick received a fellowship from the Council of Library Resources in 1971, which took him to 22 U.S. educational institutions and libraries to study the history, development, and service of selected major collections of Americana. He is a member of the Editorial Board of the Writings of Henry D. Thoreau (Princeton University Press), and General Editor for the Journal. In the summer of 1973, he was on leave of absence from the Library to complete preparations for volumes 1 and 2 of the Journal.

Mr. Broderick assumed his new duties as Chief of the Manuscript Division on January 6.

LCIB CIRCULATION AND MAILING

Information Bulletin or before binding.

Libraries needing extra copies of the LC Information Bulletin for distribution to their staff members should note that they are free to make electrostatic copies (or other photocopies) of any articles—or, indeed, of the entire Bulletin—for the use of librarians. It is not possible to produce additional copies of this publication, which is issued as a news organ for the LC staff, and still produce it on a weekly basis with its news relatively current. Because many news items are of interest to public, college, university, and research libraries and to learned societies which LC serves, reference copies are sent to such institutions, and LC is glad to have libraries copy items of interest to them. Libraries may wish to consider making copies for staff circulation before adding the LC copy to their reference collections.

Original issues of the Bulletin for early years can no longer be supplied to complete library files. The Library's Photoduplication Service has microfilmed all issues from January 23, 1942, through December 28, 1973, however, and can supply positive microfilm copies at $220, postpaid, for the 17 reels containing the issues for these years.

CREDIT UNION DECLARES SIX PERCENT DIVIDEND

The Board of Directors of the Library of Congress Federal Credit Union declared a 6 percent dividend (5 1/2 percent regular plus a 1/2 percent special dividend) for shares on deposit as of December 31. The 6 percent dividend will be posted to members' accounts on January 1. The increased dividend for the last quarter of the year reflects higher earnings of the Credit Union in 1974.

All Library employees are eligible for Credit Union membership. The Credit Union offers loans to qualified borrowers at 12 percent for signature loans and 9 percent for new automobiles and home improvement loans.

The Credit Union is located in room 1008, subbasement of the Annex Building. Office hours are 11 a.m.-3 p.m. daily and 9 a.m.-3 p.m. on paydays.

Correction: The caption to the picture in the lower left corner on page 4 of the January 3 issue should state that Archibald MacLeish served as Librarian from 1939 to 1944.

STAFF NEWS

DEATH OF FORMER STAFF MEMBER

Mark W. Pangborn, Jr., 62, an earth science librarian and map curator with the U.S. Geological Survey, died Wednesday, December 18, in Washington, D.C.

A native of Indianapolis, Ind., Mr. Pangborn received a B.A. degree in geology from Indiana University and a bachelor of science degree in library science from the University of Illinois. He worked at the Purdue University Library, and as a Reference Specialist at the Library of Congress, leaving the Library's Photoduplication Service in February 1943, before joining the U.S. Geological Survey as a Bibliographer that year.

Mr. Pangborn is survived by his wife, Ruth Eleanor, of the home in Bethesda, Md., his father, Mark W., Sr., of Indianapolis, and a sister, Eleanor Wilks, of Atlanta.

RETIREMENTS

Mary E. Colbert, Supervisor of the Elevator Operators and Checkstand Attendants, retired on December 31.

Mrs. Colbert began her Federal career at the Navy Department, where she served from December 1942 to December 1943.

Mrs. Colbert was born in Baltimore, Md. She came to the Library on September 25, 1944, and joined the then Buildings and Grounds Division. She was promoted to Elevator Operator and Checkstand Attendant on July 16, 1951, and to Supervisor of the Elevator Operators and Checkstand Attendants on January 21, 1963, the position she held until her retirement.

Upon her retirement, many friends and co-workers presented her with a purse.

Milton Kaplan, Curator of Historical Prints in the Prints and Photographs Division, retired on December 31 after more than 33 years of service in the Library of Congress. Born in 1918 in Newport News, Va., Mr. Kaplan grew up in Atlantic City, N.J., and attended the College of William and Mary, receiving his A.B. in philosophy and Latin in June 1940.

His family moved to Washington, and on April 16, 1941, he joined the staff of the Library of Congress, working first in the Card Division, then in Catalog Preparation and Maintenance, and in the Reference Department Office, until June 16, 1942, when he came to the Fine Arts Division as Under Library Assistant. In the years that followed, the Division changed its name to Prints and Photographs, and Mr. Kaplan changed his titles, becoming Picture Specialist in 1956 and Curator of Historical Prints in 1968. His retentive visual memory, his intensive knowledge of the Library's pictorial resources, and his enthusiastic assistance to researchers working in the Division have been appreciated by countless readers and recognized in the acknowledgments and credits in scores of books, films, and television programs.

Mr. Kaplan has collaborated in the publication of several articles on American popular prints and books utilizing prints from the Library's holdings, including Presidents on Parade (1948) with Hirst Milhollen, Dumas Malone's Story of the Declaration of Independence (1954) with Mr. Milhollen, the second edition of Pictorial Americana (1955) edited by Charles LaHood, Divided We Fought (1956) with Mr. Milhollen, H. Stuart and D. Donald, Charles Fenderick, Lithographer of American Statesmen (1959) with Alice Lee Parker, The Ungentlemanly Art (1968) with Stephen Hess, and the forthcoming Viewpoints with Alan Fern and the staff of the Prints and Photographs Division.

Through his work on the Prints and Photographs Division collections, his publications, and his assistance to researchers, Milton Kaplan has played a significant role in the increased knowledge and understanding of American graphic art that has developed over the past few decades. In his time at the Library, he has brought many significant works into the collections and focused attention on precious pictorial records of our history that had previously been given little study. His knowledge and energy will be missed.

On his last day of work, Mr. Kaplan's friends and colleagues gathered for refreshments in the Divison, and presented him with a leather briefcase as a token of their appreciation. Paul Berry, Director of the Reference Department, presented Mr. Kaplan his retirement certificate. Mr. Kaplan then introduced a new item into the usual retirement ceremony agenda by asking John G. Lorenz, Deputy Librarian representing Mr. Mumford, to read a letter he had written to the Librarian. The letter conveyed to the Library of Congress the sum of $2,500 to establish the Milton J. Kaplan Fund, the income for which is to be used to purchase 18th- and 19th-century American prints, drawings, or photographs or European historical prints which have some bearing upon or connection with the American past. Mr. Kaplan indicated that he was making this gift to the Library which he had served for 33 years in the spirit in which alumni honor their universities. The fund may be augmented by future donations from Mr. Kaplan and other interested persons.

David M. Valderrama, Senior Legal Specialist in the Hispanic Law Division of the Law Library, retired on December 11, 1974, after 12 years of Federal service.

A native of the Philippines, Mr. Valderrama holds a Bachelor of Law Degree from Manila's Far Eastern University where he was also associate editor of the school's law quarterly. In 1957 he was accepted to membership in the Philippine Bar and began practicing law in his country. During his practice, Mr. Valderrama served alternately as legal counsel, vice president, and manager of the Rural Bank of Siniloan, Inc., at Laguna, Philippines.

He came to the United States in 1961, and entered the Library of Congress the following year as a Processing Assistant in the Hispanic Law Division. Thereafter he held a variety of positions with increasing responsibility. In 1966 he was promoted to Legal Analyst, in 1968 to Legal Specialist, and in 1970 to Senior Legal Specialist.

In addition to his reference and research assignments, Mr. Valderrama was coauthor, with Helen L. Clagett, of A Revised Guide to the Law and Legal Literature of Mexico, which was published in 1973 by the Library. This unique study has received praise in legal, library, and Latin American circles. Before retiring, Mr. Valderrama completed a manuscript for the forthcoming Library publication, Law and Legal Literature of Peru: A Revised Guide. He also has con-

EQUALITY PROGRAMS OFFICE SURVEYS LIBRARY SCHOOLS' MINORITY ENROLLMENTS

A survey of the number of minority students in accredited schools of library science was conducted during November by Eugene Walton, Assistant Director of Personnel for Equality Programs. The survey was completed in support of a recommendation that schools be permitted to make two nominations to the Library of Congress Intern Program instead of one, and that they be encouraged to include minority students among their nominations. This recommendation was presented to and accepted by the Library of Congress Intern Committee and was implemented for the current 1975 Intern Program.

Forty-seven of the 61 schools surveyed responded. The results are shown on page 15.

David Bruce Hack of the Congressional Research Service Science Policy Research Division presented a paper entitled "The Partial Effects of Cost, Demand, and Industry Concentration in the Process of Inflation" before a joint session of the North American Meeting of the Econometric Society, and the American Economic Association in San Francisco on December 28. The paper was based on Mr. Hack's work in econometric and input-output models of production and inflation at the San Francisco Federal Reserve Bank and at the U.S. Office of Emergency Preparedness before coming to the Congressional Research Service in 1973.

Theodore Wiener, Supervisor of the Hebraic Language Unit, Miscellaneous Languages Section, Descriptive Cataloging Division, is the author of two articles appearing in the Jewish Book Annual, Vol. 32 (1974-1975). The first, "Jewish Literary Anniversaries, 1975" (pp. 74-86), lists over 50 personalities who have made contributions to Jewish literature through the centuries from Joseph Caro, the author of the popular code of Jewish law, who died in 1575, to Saul Tchernichowsky, the distinguished modern Hebrew poet, whose centenary of birth occurs next year. Brief biographical sketches are appended. The second, "American Hebrew Books, 1973-1974" (pp. 122-132), lists about 100 Hebrew books published in this country during the preceding year. While some original religious works are written in Hebrew in this country, the greater part represents reprints of Rabbinic classics published in Europe in the century before World War II.
